IMPORTANT INFORMATION

There has been two recent important security notices that I need to bring to your attention.

The first is that you need to update your ADOBE FLASH player as security holes have been found that can compromise your system. The second one is with the Windows Quicktime player that is no longer supported by APPLE and has serious security holes that can compromise your system. Even the US government is advising that you uninstall it ASAP.

See right panel for more information.

ADOBE FLASH PLAYER UPDATE

How to uninstall

Uninstall QuickTime 7 from Control Panel, as you would other programs on your PC. When following Microsoft's instructions for uninstalling programs, choose QuickTime 7 as the program to uninstall.

Or use Windows Search to find "Uninstall QuickTime," and start the process that way.
